Portfolio objective and risk

The Tactical portfolio observes an accepted industry benchmark (MSCI PIMFA Private Investor Indices) for asset allocation. This portfolio uses a strategic, long-term view, but the asset allocations are moved and amended to reflect the short-term risks and opportunities in the market.

Those in the 'Adventurous' risk category have a high-medium attitude towards risk. Your priority is likely to be making higher returns on your investments, but you are still probably concerned about losing money due to rises and falls. Your preferred investments are likely to contain mainly higher-risk investments such as shares with a few lower- and medium-risk investments such as bonds and property.

Risk Warning

We spread any inherent risks thoughtfully among various asset classes.

Quarterly investors report

August provided strong signals that Western central banks are preparing to lower interest rates. The Bank of England cut rates for the first time since 2020, joining the ECB, while Federal Reserve (Fed) Chair Jerome Powell indicated a readiness to cut rates in the US, with the pace and timing dependent on future data. Meanwhile, market volatility increased due to differing Eastern and Western central bank policies, resulting in sharp equity and currency movements. The unwinding of the Japanese yen carry trade led to a brief sell-off in global equities, though markets quickly rebounded.

Japan's Topix Index suffered its steepest drop since the 1950s. After the Bank of Japan unexpectedly raised rates in July, causing the yen to strengthen, investor activity fell, leading to a 3% drop in the S&P 500 on 5th August. However, strong US economic data and expectations of Fed rate cuts soon after pushed global equities to near-record highs.

The US election remains highly competitive, while geopolitical tensions continue to shape global markets. We remain vigilant in monitoring these developments and focused on investments in quality companies that can navigate political and economic uncertainty.
